Currently it will run well with an integrated graphics card as long as the hardware has CUDA installed. Google, Facebook, Twitter and YouTube are among the digital platforms that the EPA is seeking from agencies to ban or restrict toxic flame retardant chemicals.

The chemicals are linked to hormone disruption, cancer, reproductive toxicity, and other negative health effects. Hundreds of thousands of people have called on the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to ban chemicals linked to cancer and developmental disruption in children. The call for action comes as a number of new studies suggest that the chemicals, known as flame retardants, remain a health risk despite reductions in use in children's products. In 2016, the chemical industry claimed flame retardants were actually responsible for preventing a total of 168 deaths per year from furniture-related fires. Since then, a new study from the American Chemical Society (ACS) says flame retardants are linked to health risks even at exposures much lower than those previously reported. Reuters contributed to this report. Introduction {#sec1-1 }

===== The primary goal of developing medical countermeasures to counter the health effects of bioterrorism is to decrease morbidity and mortality and to prevent, as far as possible, the long term effects of exposure to bioweapons. The ideal medical countermeasure is one that does not become a bioweapon, but if it does come into contact with a possible bioweapon, it becomes inactive and has no biological effect. The medical countermeasures and decontamination procedures that are currently being developed can be divided into four classes:

pharmaceutical agents; enzymes; and radiation countermeasures.

Table 2{ref-type="table"} lists the in vitro and in vivo testing methods that will be needed to evaluate the potential toxicity, pharmacokinetics, immune effect and efficacy of each potential class of biopreparedness agents.
