particular data element. as you can see port 4 is connected to comm10. the comm10 device has executed the register command for mcp_course_0, mcp-iasmach, mcp_heading and mcp_altitude. this is the command in the code snipped above. the screen shots above show the mcp_course_0, mcp-iasmach, mcp_heading and mcp_altitude devices in the order that they are registered. each of these devices is assigned to a serial port and they are all connected to the same port. what is the drama surrounding these planes and the sim firms involved? well, there is the fact that both pmdg and flight sim labs(fsl) have always been fairly secretive regarding their product plans and have never fully disclosed their involvement in the field of flight simulation. flight sim labs
