It really blends easily with Photoshop. Here a comparison of some highlights of the designjet 4000 and 5500PS (source: Adobe ' website): "You'll also find the designjet 5000 offers several ways to print and create your images. Switch to the print completion window, and you can get a preview of your printed output and add your photo elements at the current step in your workflow" (source: Adobe website). Designjet 5000 users can now access the Designjet Design Studio mobile app for access to color and layout resources and create more engaging designs from their iPhone or Android devices. You can also create and manage jobs using a mobile device. The Designjet 5000 is also available for use with the Adobe Ideas 5.1 desktop publication software. See the pitch forum thread on ideashot.adobe.com for PDF2ideas and working with the Designjet 5000 for more details. The Designjet 5000 workflow is also based on the three-step print-preview-publish workflow that is familiar to Photoshop users.
