Market researchers with Nielsen are cautiously optimistic that the number of people watching network television will rise this year, but the annual survey of the audience has fallen in the U.S. compared to last year. In the U.K., the drop is even more precipitous, and we're told the figures in the U.K. aren't comparable to the U.S. numbers. Jeffrey McCown, the division president of ratings and research for ABC's television stations, says that while there has been a significant decline in the U.S. there are some positives and some people are starting to tune in - namely the kids. In the U.K., the total audience is down by more than 4 million viewers. In the U.S., it is estimated there are about 5 million more people watching television. Americans have spent millions of dollars to watch the media in the last year. In the spring, the record-breaking $71 million spent on television advertising was spent by advertisers, with $59 million of that by Disney. Last year, advertisers spent more than $60 million - but this year, figures point to a drop
